

This was my first ever attempt at design and I have improved a lot since then as I have learnt a lot about colour choice (complementing and contrasting), placement, Fonts and general UX.

This app was essentially an image sharing platform and was made purely to start improving on my design skills.

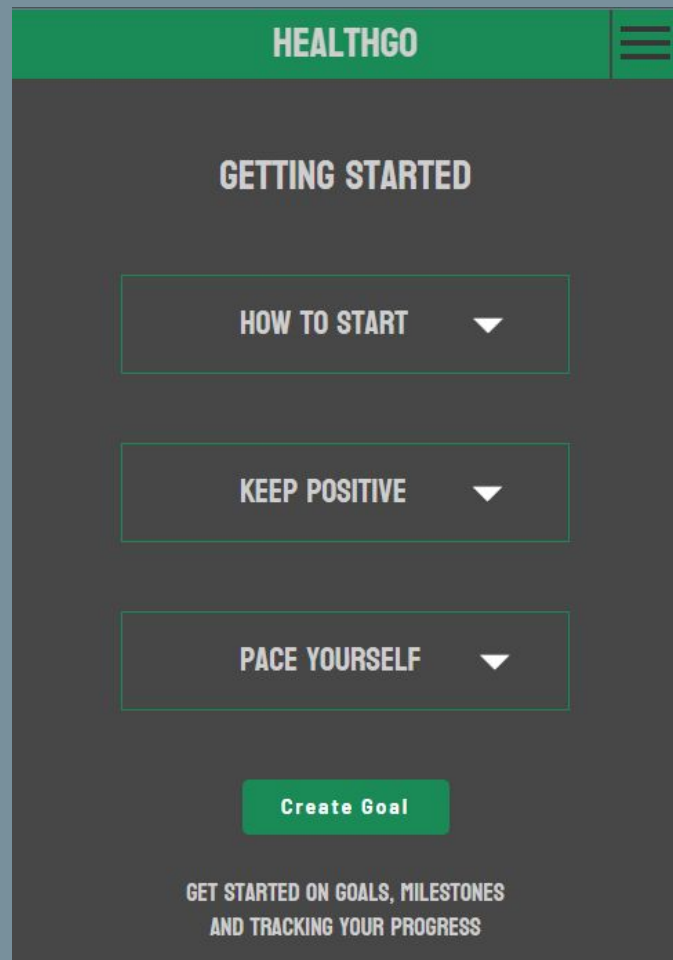

It also featured hoverable buttons and a login page

Healthgo was a fitness app designed for mobile devices that I had created later. Being a mobile app meant that I had to design around that feature set and screen size.

This includes changing UI such as hover states and changing them to be on press instead as mobile users can't hover on buttons

Healthgo featured a goal tracker that was meant to help people in setting their own health related goals

Users could then set milestones to those tasks and tick them enabling a bar that displayed how close to completion they were

I had also designed for an inventory management page.

This was designed to be as professional as possible
